Artist Statement:

Creating art has always given me a sense of peace and tranquility. It gives me a doorway to my own little world, where I can just exist. I don't have to do anything or become anything, I can just exist as I am and let that be enough. I want this piece to embody that spirit. The woman's gaze is fixed upon something visible only to her. The patterns upon her skin meander and flow with no explicit purpose or desire. Her hair is pure black because sometimes less is truly more. My hope with this piece is that the elegant lines and unique patterns fascinate the viewer just as much as they fascinated me, so that we may all get lost in our little worlds where we can truly just exist.

Description:

A side profile portrait of a woman with short hair and pattern covered skin.
