Artist Statement

Art gives me the ability to express myself and I feel I'm protecting and exercising my creative self against the people who want me to be like everyone else. School Covid reality has left me off mentally worse than when I started.

Description

This acrylic painting is done in a more cartoonist style. The self and creativity of a person are getting killed off by the Leviathan, trying to be invaded and replaced by the perfect man. The self tries to call for help, but it is futile. He is ignored. They will help him, only if it gets him closer to becoming one of them.
