Artist Statement

My name is Isabelle Stark and I'm a junior at Northport High School. I like the thought that everyone is different and unique, and that those qualities are what give people value. I also believe a part of our uniqueness comes from the experiences we have in our lives. This piece is made up of slivers and shapes of different colors and blends, each one representing an event or experience. The different colors and brightness of the pieces show that even though some experiences are more positive or brighter than others, they contribute to the person by giving them contrast. Everyone is made of different experiences, but it's those eye-catching pieces of color that make everyone an original and valuable work of art.

Description

This piece shows how unique each person can be. I wanted to show the darkness and color to show a contrast that brings out an individual's qualities.
